academic support of NAAC. This conference is being organized to impress upon the new A & A methodology, need for benchmarking and identify quantitative measures. Experts from NAAC and across the country would deliver invited lectures and debate in the panel discussion. In addition to active participation and sharing of inputs in the sessions, there will be free paper presentations from the participating institutions to showcase their best practices or specific topics as per the subthemes of the conference.

We hope the deliberations in the 2 day conference would provide ample information and opportunities to the delegates enabling them understand the concept of benchmarking and monitoring relevant indicators in addition to promoting active staff involvement. On a long term perspective and beyond accreditation we hope all the participating institutions internalize and promote quality benchmarks beyond accreditation resulting in quality health care education and delivery in our country.

- Highlight on NAAC's revised accreditation framework pertaining to health science institution
- Indicators and quality benchmark in international quality assurance frameworks
- Need for measuring and improving Quality in Health care Institutions
- Measurement of Quality in Health Care using qualitative and quantitative indicators
- Measurement of Quality in Health Care using qualitative and quantitative indicators
- Best Practices relevant to benchmarking in healthcare system and Health Sciences Institutions

- Issues in Health Care Quality - Beyond Accreditation
- Emerging Trends in building Quality and Safety in Health Care System and Health Sciences Institutions
